TAX FINANCIAL

TRANSACTIONS

Washington, DC — USA Action

It's time for President Obama to decide which side he's on. Will he tax Wall Street transactions to heal America or cut programs like Medicare? Will he demand that Wall Street pay for the devastation they've caused to our communities? Despite broad international support, and popular support in the U.S., the Obama Administration opposes the adoption of a Financial Transaction Tax (FTT).

The FTT could raise up to $350 billion per year to provide living wage jobs, guaranteed healthcare, a secure retirement for all and fund and protect public education.

When the G-20 leaders meet in France on November 3rd, President Obama needs to be on the side of Main Street and lead the movement to Tax Wall Street Transactions. Tell your friends in Europe to join with nurses to greet him there!
